8th of March text by Transnational Migrant Coordination

We live in a world where rules and laws are created by governments and those in power, but at the same time they are not the affected ones. The media is used as a tool by those in power and they criminalise the oppressed ones to keep up their profit, power and brainwash the rest. The whole world is watching this situation created on purpose for the political and economical interest of Western countries – such as their war games, weapon commerce and unlimited economical growth.

In order to realize this, they are transforming our countries into non-safe places. When we need to migrate and look for a better future. They are punishing us with militarized borders, hell like camps, endless waiting, and non-sense asylum procedures— all consequences of their bloody deals.

We are the migrant women who experienced the worst camp in the world – Moria, and are witnessing now Moria 2.0 which was build after the first one burned down. The politicians are trying to realize their criminal and inhuman politics here, not visible to the outside world. As they want to create a fake truth about Moria and the troubles that migrants are experiencing, they started to threaten the people who are showing this reality with images. Now taking pictures of the camp is forbidden and if we still do, we are being threatened with deportation or by cancellation of the refugee status. They are trying to limit and silence the demonstrations of migrants.

When we want to speak loudly about our problems, the police attacks us violently with tear gas. We are supported by numerous solidarity people, but at the same time many Western NGOs are trying to exploit our work to increase their profit. We are working unlimited hours, with ridiculous payments but mostly even for free, because we become their volunteers. The images of us suffering are used by them in order to increase their donations.

We, as migrant women, live the worst conditions in the camp. The camp is not safe for us, the hygienic conditions are terrible and especially difficult for woman. Extreme measures are taken by people to raise up their voices after facing systematic passivity to unfair, violent and neglected situations. Our bodies burn because of injustice and neglect.

The exercise of keeping ourselves alive puts our own lives at risk.

The system wants us dead.

Even if you are not able to hear us, it doesn't mean that we are silent and we don't resist. We were never really silent. If you paid attention, you could hear our voices among the tents of this camp of shame, among the sounds of the fights in the camp, among the cries of so many who couldn't take it anymore. We are still looking for a way to free ourselves, raise our voice in different ways even though most of the world is ignoring us.

As migrant women who come from patriarchal cultures and countries where we are pushed down by men, in addition to that, we face a racist system and the pressures of an unfair and an unedifying asylum procedure.

In this situation, because of being women living in a patriarchal world, we are the ones who have to take care of children & family and are expected to provide food while being stuck on an island, which makes us deal even with more problems.

We as migrant women are facing double discrimination and suppression by patriarchal and racist power.

When we come to Europe we experience islamophobia even by people calling themselves feminists — while feminism actually means to be self-determined.

How can we fight together against patriarchy when we do not stand in solidarity as women?

If nobody raises their voices for us , we have to stand in solidarity and fight for each other.

Women support women.

We know that LGBTQI+ are sharing the same oppression and struggles by patriarchy as we do and we want to stand together in solidarity in our struggle, fights and resistance. As long as our bodies, sexuality and rights are chosen and judged by others we cannot talk about equality.

WE are standing all together against patriarchy and against the migrant worker exploitation of European neoliberal system.

Walls, fences, and concentration camps on the borders of the Fortress Europe are the consequence of a triple system of oppression: Patriarchy, colonialism and capitalism. Three systems of oppression connected and articulated. Building on each other, feeding back on each other. We cannot denounce one without denouncing the whole. We cannot understand one without understanding the system. When we want to smash one, we have to smash them all.

Despite the terrible circumstances we are stuck in, we are still looking for ways to continue resisting and build a future with justice. We reach out to the women of Europe and the world: We have no rights. We need to build bridges that allow us to be stronger, to reach further, to destroy borders.

Those borders that also divide women, that prevent us from recognizing each other. You cannot speak about feminism if we are not included. The system will not fall if the borders do not fall. Because sisterhood is the way.

Smash the patriarchy, smash the borders!

We believe that we should fight everyday for our rights.

If we stop the world stops.
